"ODD FISH"

Frogs, toads and serpents never take any food but that which they are satisfied is alive. If a bee, wasp or hornet stings, it is sense of his life. Serpents are so tenacious of life that they will live six months without food. Turtles dig holes in the sand by the sea-shore, and bury their eggs, leaving them to be hatched by the sun. Lobsters are very pugnacious and fight severe battles. If they lose a claw, another grows out. Naturalists state that a single swallow will devour six thousand flies a day. A single codfish produces 1,000,000 eggs in one season. Toads become torpid in winter and hide themselves, taking no food for five or six months. Serpents of all species shed their skins annually, like sea crabs and lobsters. Turtles and tortoises have their skeletons partly outside of, instead of within, their body. It is believed that crocodiles live to be hundreds of years old. The ancient Egyptians embalmed them. In South America there is a profitable honey bee that has not been furnished with a sting. Seals are as intelligent as dogs, and may be made to perform many tricks like them. The head of a rattlesnake has been known to inflict a fatal wound after being separated from the body. If the eye of a newt is put out, another perfect eye is soon supplied by rapid growth. Fishes have no eyelids, and necessarily sleep with their eyes open. Alligators fall into a lethargic sleep during the winter, like a toad. Cows and Milk.—The art of feeding our cows so to produce the greatest quantity and best quality of milk, is neither understood nor practiced, generally. An experienced writer, who says that one good cow gives all the milk that is needed in a family of eight persons, and from which cows were made two hundred and sixty pounds of butter last year, gives the following as his treatment. He says: "If you desire to get a large yield of rich milk give your cow every day water slightly warm, slightly salted, in which bran has been stirred at the rate of one quart to two gallons of water. You will find if you have not tried this daily practice that your cow will give twenty-five per cent. more milk immediately under the effects of it, and she will become so attached to the diet as to refuse to drink clear water unless very thirsty, but this mess she will drink almost any time and ask for more. The amount of the drink necessary is an ordinary water pailful each time, morning, noon and night. Four hundred pounds of butter are often obtained from good stock, and instances are mentioned when the yield was even higher."

Walnut trees sometimes attain prodigious size and great age. An Italian architect mentions having seen at St. Nicholas, in Lorraine, a single plank of the wood of the walnut twenty-five feet wide, upon which the Emperor Frederick III. had given a sumptuous banquet. In the Baidar Valley, near Balaklava, in the Crimea, stands a walnut tree at least 1,000 years old. It yields annually from 80,000 to 100,000 nuts, and belongs to five Tartar families, who share its produce equally.

Quite an extensive business is done by Belgians smuggling tobacco across the border into France, by means of trained dogs, who are intelligent and swift footed, and know precisely the safe routes and where to take the tobacco that is tied about them.

A little girl, when asked by her mother about suspicious bites in the sides of a dozen apples, answered "Perhaps, mamma, they have been frost-bitten; it was so cold last night."

Twenty years ago an Augusta, (Me.) man invested the sum of eighty dollars in Wisconsin lands. A few days ago he received by mail, for the same property, a check for $1,800.

A paper in Maine advises young men not to marry a female who makes use of bad grammar, as she is apt to pick up an old stocking to wipe the dishes on.

A New Hampshire blacksmith refused to shoe a physician's horse because it had been driven in a district infected with the small-pox.

White horses are now used exclusively in Paris at funerals of children or young unmarried people.

How to take life easy—Be careless with petroleum oil.

In Paris there are contractors who pay the city $20,000 per annum for the privilege of keeping the streets clean. The work is done under the supervision of the municipal authorities, and the contractors are reimbursed by the sale of the mud and dust, which, when manufactured into fertilizers, is said to yield $600,000 annually.

COSTLY FUNERAL.

The New York World of a recent date contained the following sensible article on a subject of interest to every family in the land:

In one or two of the city papers on Monday was appended to the notice of a funeral the injunction, "Friends will kindly send no flowers." This is not an absolute novelty in funeral notices. Some time ago we remarked upon the appearance of such a notice. The fact that such notices are multiplying shows that the feeling which prompts them is becoming general, and this seems to us a gratifying thing.

There is nothing more graceful than this custom of floral tributes, in its origin and meaning. To strew the grave of a child or young woman with white flowers is fit and affecting at once as a tribute and as an expression of bereavement.

But even in this case it is necessary to the expressiveness of the ceremony that it should be spontaneous and unforced. It is particularly necessary that there should not be the slightest commercial taint upon the transaction. A mourner strewing on a coffin flowers which he has gathered presents a sight which nobody would think of remarking upon, except in a spirit of reverential sympathy. It is well enough that if flowers cannot be gathered for such a purpose, they should be bought; but in that case right feeling would surely dictate that they should be the simplest that can be got. In our recent usage we have completely lost sight of these conditions. People who never knew the dead when living, but happen to know some member of the family, feel called to testify to bereavement, but their notion of the bereavement which somebody else has sustained, though a sincere mourner does not care for the sympathies of those who know nothing of what he has lost, and the expression of their sympathy, never grateful to him, may become impertinent and even railing. Moreover, neither one's respect for the dead nor one's sympathy with the survivors can be expressed in money. Yet an attempt so to express it is the essence of the existing system of "floral tributes." Men think to discharge themselves of their duties to the dead and the living by ordering so many dollars' worth of cut flowers, the amount being regulated by the intimacy of their business as well as social relations with the mourning family, and their sense of what is required of them. Thus the simple flowers which should be strewn by mourners, are converted into huge mortuary trophies of crosses, crowns and anchors, which represent no feeling whatever but that of social obligation, and with which the givers of them had nothing whatever to do except to pay for them. They vie with each other in expense, and the result is that a funeral becomes a scene of horrible and vulgar display.

It is no wonder that sensitive and self-respecting persons should have found the pass to which the funeral show business has got altogether intolerable, and should have taken means to stop it in the cases of funerals in their own families. It is quite time. Besides, having become so repulsive to right feeling, it has become a severe tax on many. Mourners who would much rather not have this load of floral sympathy from casual acquaintances are bereaved.

Funerals are so costly in other ways as to be burdensome to families in straitened circumstances. It is perhaps impossible to reform this altogether, for it proceeds from that "passionate prodigality" in sacrificing our substance to those we have loved and lost which is a deep trait of human nature. But in this respect we can correct it by acting in a rational and considerate way, by refraining from sending "floral tributes" to any burials but those of our own near friends; and even then by sending simpler and less pretentious offerings. The usage which has lately prevailed is extravagant, offensive, and of no advantage or consolation to any but the florists.

The musk ox is one of the most remarkable quadrupeds to be found in the Arctic regions. It is about the height of a deer, but is much stouter and appears larger than it really is from the great profusion of long matted woolen hair which covers the whole body, and conceals a thick coat of extremely fine wool. The head is large and broad, and the horns, very broad at the base, are about two feet in length.

The work is done under the supervision of the municipal authorities, and the contractors are reimbursed by the sale of the mud and dust, which, when manufactured into fertilizers, is said to yield $600,000 annually.

PARENTS' STORIES.

One can hardly pick up a newspaper either religious or secular, without meeting one or more pretty little stories about naughty little boys and girls who, in spite of the careful (?) training of their parents, persisted in some annoying habits, such as teasing, tardiness, selfishness, rashness, cruelty to animals, etc., until they were finally and completely cured by the provoking imitation of some pet parrot, or the loss of a promised half holiday or Christmas gift.

How would it turn the tables and harp awhile on the shortcomings of the parents? Yes! that's the idea; let us have a new departure series of stories for parents, glaring from the frosty corner of every newspaper. Let us hear of fond and foolish parents who, from the time their children are able to express themselves, give their wishes preference in all things, and as they grow up are heartbroken at their selfishness.

Of weak and hasty parents who quarrel with instead of controlling their children.

Of fault-finding parents, who reprove their children with a consistency that would almost discourage a saint.

Of thoughtless parents, who give their children everything they cry for, and whip them because they cry for everything they want.

Of unwise parents, who harden their children's consciences by continually telling them that they deserve a good whipping, which they are careful never to give.

And so on, through the long list of inefficient parents, who are unconsciously destroying the happiness and liveliness of their children, by their utter ignorance of the art of controlling them; yet this ignorance is not to be wondered at, if we may suppose that the "parent of the period" has been guided by the experience of those incapable "mamas" and impostors "Freddies," who figure so largely in a certain kind of juvenile literature.

A writer in the Springfield Republican bewails what he regards as a waning of respect for clergymen, and as an example of the customs of the olden times relates this of Jonathan Edwards: "Of a Sabbath morning, after good men and families were assembled in their respective highbacks, the minister, arriving in a black gown, would lead his family up the aisle, and at the first notice of his appearing the whole congregation would rise. When he had seated his family and mounted his pulpit throne, the people would sit amid the creaking of boots and thumping of warming pans, when the weather was cold, with perhaps a rap of the pole of the tithing-man who stood in the rear and presided over the boys collected together, apart from their families. This public respect paid the minister was continued in his family."

A gentleman on board a steamboat with his family was asked by his children "What makes the boat go?" when he gave them a very minute description of the machinery and its principles in the following words:—"You see, my dears, this thingum-bob goes down, down through that hole and fastens the jigsaw, and that connects with the crankum-crankum; and that man—you see he's the engineer, you know—kind of stirs up the what-do-you-call-it with a long poker and they all shove along and the boat goes ahead."

There is a church built of paper, near Berlin, Prussia, which can contain nearly one thousand persons. It is circular within, octagonal without. The reliefs outside and statues within, the roof, ceiling, the Corinthian capitals, are all paper, made, rendered waterproof by saturating in vitriol, lime-water, whey, and white of eggs. When we think of a psalm sung by a thousand voices pealing through a splendid edifice made of old rags, we feel as though we had lost the right to be surprised at any future achievement of science and art.

Bessompiere, French ambassador to Spain, was telling Henry IV how he entered Madrid. "I was mounted on the very smallest mule in the world," said the ambassador. "Ah!" said the king, "what an amusing sight to see the biggest ass mounted on the smallest mule." "I was your majesty's representative," was the rejoinder.

Oriental justice and oriental rapacity are curiously illustrated in the case of the late octogenarian Governor of the Persian province of Fars, who upon retiring from office had his soles beaten till he disgorged $200,000, and promised to return $100,000 more of his ill-gotten wealth.

An old lady, reading about "More Arms for Turkey," remarked that she thought it would be better to give them more legs, for if there were a dozen children at a dinner table where there was a roast turkey, each one was sure to ask for a leg.

AN AFFECTING ANECDOTE.

On one of the many bridges in Ghent stand two large, brazen images of father and son, who obtained this distinguished mark of the admiration of their fellow-citizens by the following incidents:

Both the father and the son were, for some offence against the State, condemned to die. Some favorable circumstances appearing on the side of the son, he was granted a remission of his sentence, under certain provisions; in short he was offered a pardon, on a most cruel and barbarous condition—namely, that he would become the executioner of his father! He at first resolutely refused to preserve his life by means so fatal and detestable. This is not to be wondered at; for let us hope, for the honor of our nature, that there are very few sons who would not have spurned with abhorrence life sustained on a condition so horrid and unnatural. The son, though long inflexible, was at length overcome by the tears and entreaties of a fond father, who represents to him that, at all events, his (the father's) life was forfeited, and that it would be the greatest possible consolation for him in his last moments that in his death he was an instrument of his son's preservation. The youth consented to adopt the horrible means of recovering his life and liberty, he lifted the axe—but, as it was about to fall, his arm sunk nerveless, and the axe dropped from his hand! Had he as many lives as hairs, he could have yielded them all, one after another rather than again conceive much less perpetrate, such an act. Life, liberty, everything vanished before the dearer interests of filial affection; he fell upon his father's neck, and embracing him, triumphantly exclaimed:

"My father! we die together!" and then called for another executioner to fulfill the sentence of the law.

Hard must their hearts indeed be—bereft of every sentiment of virtue, every sensation of humanity—who could stand insensible spectators of such a scene. A sudden appeal of involuntary applause, mixed with moans and sighs, rent the air. The execution was suspended; on a simple report of the transaction to the authorities, both were conferred. High rewards and honors were conferred on the son; and finally these two admirable brazen images were raised to commemorate a transaction so honorable to human nature, and transmit it to the instruction and emulation of posterity. The statue represents the son in the very act of letting fall the axe.

GIVING THE DEVIL HIS DUE.—There is an important lesson in the following: A pastor was making a call upon an old lady who made it an habitual rule never to speak ill of another, and had observed it so closely that she always justified those whom she had heard evil spoken of. Before the old lady made her appearance in the parlor, the several children had been speaking of this peculiarity of their mother, and one of them playfully added: "My mother has such a habit of speaking well of everybody, I believe if Satan himself were the subject of conversation, mother would find some virtue or good quality even in him. Of course this remark elicited some smiling and merriment at the originality of the idea, in the midst of which the old lady entered the room, and on being told what had just been said, she immediately and voluntarily replied, "Well, my children, I wish we all had Satan's industry and perseverance."

With a view to ascertain the time that would be occupied in bringing an ironclad into action, the Admiral commanding the British fleet in Fiska bay recently had them "Turn Out" sounded in the middle of the night, without any previous warning to officers or men. The whole ship was cleared, and the first gun fired within seven minutes after the alarm.

A comic opera company composed of Commodore Nutt, six other dwarfs as small, and Col. Goshen, the giant, is traveling in the West. They play "Jack, the Giant Killer," Goshen, of course, personating the giant. They enter a town with Goshen riding ahead on an immense horse, and the dwarfs following in a tiny carriage.

It is estimated that through the country 11,000 persons have died from diseases brought on by being over-worked, drinking bad water, eating improper food and undergoing unusual excitement while attending the Centennial.

"Pa, I came near selling my boots yesterday." "You did, Sir! Well, it's lucky you didn't sell 'em. How did you come near doing it?" "I had 'em half-sold."

The Pekin Gazette is one thousand years old. The editor is never bored with a visit from the man who has "taken your paper since it started."

Wait—Wait, husband, before you wonder audibly why your wife don't get along with the household affairs "as your mother did." She is doing her best, and no woman can endure that best to be slighted. Remember the long, weary nights she sat up with the little babe that died; remember the love and care she bestowed upon you when you had that long spell of sickness. Do you think she is made of cast iron? Wait—wait in silence and forbearance, and the light will come back to her eyes—the old light of old days.

Wait, wife, before you speak reproachfully to your husband when he comes in late, weary and "out of sorts." He worked hard for you all day, perhaps far into the night; he has wrestled, bled in hand, with care, and selfishness, and greed, and all the demons that follow in the train of money making. Let home be another atmosphere entirely. Let him feel that there is one place in the world where he can find quiet and perfect love.—Home Companion.

CENTENNIAL FEVER.—A Brooklyn physician, who has attended many cases of the characteristic fever that resulted from visiting the Centennial, says that he is convinced that the cause was not the bad sanitary condition of Philadelphia, or of the exhibition grounds, but the presence of fomites in certain articles on exhibition, which had been brought from some of the worst plague spots of the earth—of Egypt, Africa, India, Asia and South America. The doctor further adds that as a result of the Centennial we shall be afflicted with various types or grades of fever hitherto unknown to us.

A will was recently filed in the Probate Court at Dedham, Mass., which for nicety of detail is most notable. The widow is to have the use of part of her house and the front garden, one stall in the barn and storage for hay over the said stall; four cords of wood yearly; the use of the kitchen stove and furniture, and one seat in a pew of a certain church in Medway, on condition of her paying one-fourth the tax on the same. Each bequest contains the proviso "as long as she remains a widow," and finally directs her to surrender everything in case she ever married again.

An Englishman was accosted thus:—"What would you take to stand all night in the tower of St. Paul's?" "A beefsteak and a pint of beer," was the frank reply. The next one thus accosted was a Scotsman. Says Sandy, "What'll ye gie?" "Lastly," came along Patrick, and when asked what he would take to stand all night in the tower of St. Paul's, he wittily answered, "An' sure an' I'd be apt to take a bad cowl."

Poultry raising is one of the most profitable branches of farm-industry. The immense demand for poultry and eggs should stimulate every farmer to attend to the raising of pure-bred fowls. It is really as important as raising cattle and horses.

A boy of twelve, dining at his uncle's, made such a good dinner that his aunt observed, "Johnny, you appear to eat well." Yes, aunty, replied theurchin; "I've been practicing eating all my life."

A Waterville girl worked the motto, "I need thee every hour," and presented it to her chap. He says he can't help it; it takes him two hours to milk, and feed the pigs, morning and night, and business has got to be attended to.

The change to the latest style of lady's hat is readily accomplished now by simply unshipping the bustle and transferring it to the top of the wearer's head.—Brooklyn Argus.

In carrying a turkey in the presence of strangers it is a breach of etiquette to stop more than twice to spit on your hands and get a new hold.—Norristown Herald.

A married couple resemble a pair of shears, so joined that they cannot well be separated, moving often in opposite directions, but always pursuing whatever comes between them.

A teacher fainted the other evening, and a little girl, describing it at home, said: "She was so faint she couldn't come her to."

In a pamphlet by Dr. Carter Blake it is stated that the lakes in the northeast of Iceland are surrounded by primrose-colored mountains of pure sulphur.

Over four million sewing machines have been sold since they were first introduced in 1853.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

DEER.—We were in hope that the people of this county had about discarded the petty local jealousies that have so long disgraced us as a community, and were convinced that whatever promoted the interests of one section of the county would insure to the benefit of the entire commonwealth, but we find the old jealousies breaking forth anew. Owing to the increased interest taken in our mines during the year, entailing heavy expenditures of money, and an increase of population, a petition to the Postmaster General for a mail six times a week to this county has been in circulation and very generally signed, but we are surprised that any opposition to such a great convenience should spring up in any quarter. By an increase of postal service every person in the county—wherever they may reside—will be benefited thereby. Supposing that a small portion of the county should not be directly benefited, which we cannot admit—why should we act the dog in the manger? The mining business of Alpine county is assuming such proportions that greater mail facilities will be required early in the coming year, and we hope that this unfeeling local feeling will be dropped and that the people of the entire county will act harmoniously in regard to this matter—as they should on all matters calculated to further the interests of the county.

CHRISTMAS.—Judging from the number of fine fat turkeys daily brought to town our citizens will give due observance to Christmas Day, so far as the inner man is to be cared for; and the ladies are working with a will to make the Christmas Tree festival an enjoyable affair for the old as well as the young. We have had a whisper from Santa Claus that he will arrive here from over the Rio Grande road at about 9 o'clock. He will bring lots of things for good little boys and girls that mind their parents and schools.

At Mackleeville great preparations are making for the Tree, which we know will be well laden with Holiday gifts. After the presents are distributed there will be a social dance. As there will be no Frost Monitor on the Woodford the pleasure-seekers of these towns have a cordial invitation to visit the "orange groves," or soar "above the clouds."

COMING.—It is a fact that the Virginia & Truckee Railroad is to be extended to Genoa. The route has been surveyed, and we learn that the grading of the road will be commenced soon after New Year's Day. This extension will save Alpine travelers a tedious ride of thirteen miles. It will not be long before the Company will find it to their interest to extend the road to Alpine county.

THE ADVANCE.—The drifting is progressing very satisfactorily. Arrangements are being perfected to work the mine more effectively on the opening of Spring. The employees of the Company have been investing in the stock of the Company—showing that they have confidence in the claim.

A "HOR."—At Silver Mountain on Christmas night those that are not blessed with Quaker feet or crans will have an opportunity to join in the social dance after the presents have been distributed. Supper at Ford's Hotel.

HAULING ONE.—The continued fine weather is enabling Manager Chalmers to accumulate a large body of Exchange ore at the Company's mill, which will soon be completed.

THE MOUNTAIN MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Mountain Company will be held at the office of the Company at San Francisco on Monday afternoon, January 8th.

Snow.—On Tuesday night we had a slight fall of snow, but not enough to cover the ground.

WILL MEET.—The miners of Silver Mountain District will hold a meeting on the evening of Tuesday next.

TURKEY DINNER.—Turkey dinner on Christmas at McClay & Fearon's Fick's Hotel.

THE LAST WEEK.—Next week is the last in which to pay taxes before costs are added.

MARK THESE FACTS.

The Testimony of the Whole World. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

"I had no appetite. Holloway's Pills gave me a hearty one."
"Your Pills are marvellous."
"I send for another box, and keep them in the house."
"Dr. Holloway has cured my headache that was chronic."
"I gave one of your Pills to my babe for cholera morbus. The dear little thing got well in a day."
"My nausea of a morning is now cured."
"Your box of Holloway's Ointment cured me of a sore throat. I rubbed some of your Ointment behind the ears, and the noise has left."
"Send me two boxes; I want one for a poor family."
"I enclose a dollar; your price is 25 cents, but the medicine to me is worth a dollar."
"Send me five boxes of your Pills."
"Let me have three boxes of your Pills by return mail, for Chills and Fever."
I have over 200 such testimonials as these, but want of space compels me to conclude.

Cutaneous Diseases.
And all eruptions of the skin, this Ointment is most invaluable. It does not heal externally alone, but penetrates with the most searching effect to the very root of the evil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS Invariably cure the following diseases, Disorder of the Kidneys.

In all diseases affecting these organs, whether they secrete too much or too little water; or whether they be affected with stone or gravel, or with aches and pains settled in the loins over the regions of the kidneys, these Pills should be taken according to the printed directions, and the Ointment should be well rubbed into the small of the back at bed time. This treatment will give almost immediate relief, when all other means have failed.

For Stomachs out of Order.
No medicine will so effectually improve the tone of the stomach as these Pills, they remove acidity occasioned either by indigestion or improper diet. They reach the liver and reduce it to a healthy action; they are wonderfully efficacious in cases of spasms—in fact they never fail in curing all disorders of the liver and stomach.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the best known in the world for the following diseases: Acute, Asthma, Bilious Complaints, Blisters on the skin, Bowels, Constipation, Debility, Dropsy, Dysentery, Erysipelas, Female Irregularities, Fevers of all kinds, Fits, Gout, Headache, Indigestion, Inflammation, Jaundice, Liver Complaints, Lumbago, Piles, Rheumatism, Retention of urine, Scrophulous or King's Evil, Sore Throat, Stomach and Gravel, The Venereal, Tumors, Ulcers, Worms of all kinds, Weakness from any cause, &c.

IMPORTANT CAUTION.

None are genuine unless the signature of J. H. HOLLOWAY, as agent for the United States, surrounds each box of Pills and Ointment. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY & Co., New York, and by all respectable druggists and dealers in medicine throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

MEDICAL.

YOUNG MEN

Who may be suffering from the effect of youthful follies or indiscretions, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity.
DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of seminal weakness, or im-pote disease of any kind or character which therefore, say to the unfortunate sufferer who may read this notice, that you are treading on dangerous ground when you longer delay in seeking the proper remedy for your complaint. You may be in the first stage; remember you are approaching the last. If you are lingering on the last, and are suffering some or all of its ill effects, remember that if you persist in procrastination, the time must come when the most skillful physician can render no assistance; when the door of hope will be closed against you; when no angel of mercy can bring you relief. In no case has the doctor failed of success.
Then let not despair work upon your imagination, but avail yourself of the beneficial results of his treatment before your case is beyond medical skill, or before grim death hurries you to a premature grave. Full course of treatment, $25.00. Send money by Post

GRAND TRIUMPH FOR

WEBER

Pianos!

First Premium over all American and Foreign Manufacturers.

Copy of a Telegram received by Sherman & Hyde:

New York, Sept. 29th, 1876—Received the highest award for sympathetic, pure, and rich tone, combined with greatest power, as shown in the three styles—Grand, Square, and Upright Pianos—which show intelligence and solidity in their construction, a pliant and easy touch, which at the same time answers promptly to its requirements, together with excellence of workmanship.

A. WEBER.

Never before in the history of piano forte manufacture has an instrument risen so rapidly in popular favor.

Its intrinsic merit and decided superiority over all others has caused every musician and artist of note to adopt and recommend it.

Nelson says, "I shall take every opportunity to recommend and praise your instruments."

Miss Kellogg says, "Your Pianos are my choice for the concert room and my own house."

Lucas says, "Your uprights are extraordinary instruments, and deserve their great popularity."

Patti says, "I have used the Pianos of every celebrated maker, but give yours the preference over all."

Strauss says, "Your Pianos astonish me. I have never seen any Pianos which equal yours."

Wehl says, "Madame Parepa called your Pianos the finest in the United States. I fully endorse that opinion. They have no rival."
